Board of Education Given Power to 'Re-Appportion' All Insurance Policies

Method Will Allow Every Accredited Agency in City an 'Equitable' Share of Policies Written Allocation Soon

Preparation of Committee's Report Required Months of Careful Work

The Insurance Committee of the Board of Education was empowered Friday evening to proceed with the plan which has been under way for several months for a "re-apportionment" of the insurance policies which the board carries with local agencies.

This scheme which has been under consideration for several months will provide a readjustment so that every accredited agent of the city will get a "just and equitable" share of the business as based on the volume of business which each particular agent does.

Trustee G. V. D. Hutton, chairman of the committee, made a report of the progress made thus far on the plan and stated that the work had now reached a point, after months of work, where the committee was ready to begin the work of making the allocation of insurance to the various agents.

Trustee Hutton asked that the board empower the insurance committee to continue its work "to re-apportion the premium income derived from insurance coverage of the board on such a percentage basis as is just and equitable in the judgment of the committee and based on volume averages calculated from a survey made among the local agents."

The action of the committee thus far was approved by the board and authority was given to proceed with the allotments.

Mr. Hutton reported that after a survey in which insurance underwriters, insurance agents, bankers and business men were consulted, his committee had completed data for the compilation of a schedule whereby every recognized city agent in good standing would be eligible for the rule which prohibits a city officer or employee from doing business with the city, will be given a certain percentage of the board's insurance. This percentage will be based on the volume of business which the individual agent does as revealed by his own rating and the rating as determined from other sources.

To Fix Schedule

All of the school insurance, fire, liability, compensation and property damage policies will be included. It is the plan of the board to disregard the amount of insurance which any agent now carries and to fix a new schedule so that all agents will get their proportionate share of the total business written for the school system. The plan is an attempt to see that every agent in the city gets his share of the business. All agents now having school insurance will get a share of the business and two or three additional ones will share in the business.

The Insurance Committee which has been working on the plan for several months is Trustee Hutton, Trustee Feeney, and Trustee Feeney. That committee has been working in conjunction with a committee from the insurance agencies which includes A. A. Pardee, Eugene B. Carey and W. A. Van Valkenburg.

Policy Forms

Power was also given the Insurance Committee to have policy forms printed if necessary.

Permission was granted the Kingston City Hospital for use of the huge school auditorium for commencement exercises on the evening of October 28.

The Junior League was also granted use of the high school auditorium for a school play on the afternoons of November 16, 17 and 18.

A problem which has been before the board for some time again came up when figures were submitted as to the cost of laying 560 square yards of surface on the plot of ground in the rear of the high school where some time ago rock was taken out leaving the roadway in a rough condition. City Engineer Norton prepared estimates for the work and figures were solicited from the Cold-Mix people who are now working on the Myron J. Michael roadway. They submitted a figure of $1.10 per square yard but stated in addition that any drainage would be "extra." The board

Public Inspection Of Michael School To Be Held Soon

Open House to Be Held Some Saturday and Sunday So Taxpayers May View New Edifice Here

With work on the Myron J. Michael School practically completed the Board of Education is planning for a public inspection of the new building.

Trustee Feeney of the Building Committee has suggested that as soon as the work is completed the building be opened to the public on a Saturday and Sunday so that the taxpayers may see what has been accomplished by the latest addition to the city's school system.

The public opening, however, will not be held until work has progressed on the roadway and walks to such an extent that there will be suitable access to the building. It is expected that work will be completed on the east side of the building by November 4 and that work will be progressing to such an extent that the west drive may be used by vehicles. Unless weather prevents the public inspection may be held shortly after the first of November. Announcement of the dates will be made by Superintendent Van Ingen.

An inspection of the Myron J. Michael School by the board Friday evening showed that the work is practically completed in the building. There remain a few final jobs before the building will be turned over to the board for final approval.

Police Receive Complaints Against Political Posters

The police department has received complaints that posters, mostly of a political nature, are being tacked on electric light poles in the city. This is a violation of the law, especially when no permission has been received from the owners of the poles.

The poles are the property of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, and Arthur L. Colligan of the company has informed the police department that no permission has been granted.

'John Bull's' Headquarters in Jerusalem

Quarters for "John Bull" in the Holy Land include these three Jerusalem buildings—headquarters for Britain's army, air force and tank corps, and it is here that sterner repressive measures to halt rebellion are planned. The American consulate is down the street, to the right. Many-storied apartment houses are to be found in this, the "new city" of holy Jerusalem.

New Wage-Hour Measure Goes Into Effect Monday

Elmer Andrews to Announce Tonight Records Employers Should Keep; Interpretation Tomorrow

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The wage-hour administration rushed work today on last minute explanations of how industry should comply with the most far-reaching attempt to put a floor under wages and a ceiling over hours since the days of the NRA.

Administrator Elmer F. Andrews said he hoped to announce by midnight the kind of records employers should keep to show conformity with the new law which becomes effective at 12:01 a. m. Monday.

His aides, meanwhile, were preparing a general interpretation of the act. This will be released for publication tomorrow morning.

In a further attempt to clarify the public understanding of the measure, Andrews will make a series of radio broadcasts tomorrow afternoon. He said he would attempt to answer as many as possible of the general questions asked by business men in the last few days.

Hundreds of thousands of wage-earners completed today their last week of unregulated employment. When they return to their jobs next Monday morning, a pay rate of 25 cents an hour will have become the legal minimum for all who produce goods going into interstate commerce or whose work, in the words of a recent Supreme Court decision, places a "burden" upon interstate commerce.

Their standard work week will have been established at 44 hours with the requirement that they be compensated at the rate of time and one-half for each hour of overtime.

It also will have become illegal to employ in mining or manufacturing industries anyone under 16.

Jobs Going Begging

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—One hundred $4,500 a year jobs are going begging here. They are vacancies on the teaching staffs of New York city vocational schools and those with the technical training enabling them to satisfy the high requirements apparently can make more in industry than the $4,500 salaries offered.

The openings are in the teaching of the automotive, building, electrical, food, graphic arts, metal and needle trades.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The estate of the late Carrie L. Lehman, whose husband, Philip, is a cousin of Gov. Herbert Lehman, was valued at $3,762,322 in an accounting filed in surrogate's court yesterday.

Mrs. Lehman left her residuary estate equally to a son, Robert Lehman, and a daughter, Mrs. Pauline Ickelheimer, both of New York.

District Attorney Says Charles Ford to Be Held For First Degree Murder

Harvey W. Clancy, 40, prominent resident of Phoenicia, was fatally shot while standing in front of his place of business shortly before 10 o'clock this morning.

State Trooper Soules, notified immediately of the shooting, a short time later arrested Charles Ford, 75, a former assessor of the township, and held him for questioning at a Phoenicia hotel.

Trouble between Ford and Clancy is believed to have arisen over a real estate transaction.

China War Rolls Toward New Peak; Spain More Tense

Europe Rests Uneasily Today as Hundreds of Thousands of Czech, Hungarian Troops Mark Time

(By The Associated Press)

The 15-month-old war in China rolled today toward a new climax before Hankow and possibly the decisive Japanese stroke which a new storm of combat appeared to be gathering in the 27-month-old Spanish civil war.

Europe proper rested a bit uneasily in the crisis-born peace of Munich, meanwhile aiming against the day when that peace might be shattered.

The French cabinet approved stern measures to lengthen working hours in national defense industries, particularly in airplane factories, and listened to a report on the progress of French-German rapprochement.

Hundreds of thousands of Czechoslovak and Hungarian troops faced each other along the zone where Hungary has demanded a surrender of territory in the manner of the Munich award of Czechoslovak Sudetenland to Germany.

Dr. Eduard Benes, resigned president and co-founder of the Czechoslovak republic, flew to London from Prague, apparently on route to become a visiting professor at the University of Chicago.

Germany sent up a trial balloon to test the currents of opinion in Britain and the United States on a three-party trade agreement to supplement or supplement the projected Anglo-American pact.

The proposal came from authoritative quarters in the German economic ministry.

Japanese commanders of the campaign against Hankow, Chinese military capital, said capitulation was imminent.

Although the drive has been in progress about four months against the successful 10-day Canton offensive, the Japanese in the Yangtze valley seemed likely now to duplicate the South China victory of yesterday.

Mass bombing of the Hankow area to shatter the last Chinese resistance was foreseen in a warning that foreign vessels at the great river port proceed at least 16 miles above Hankow by midnight tonight.

Harvey W. Clancy was a young man, about 40, interested in sports and was a former officer of the Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster county. He held the position of justice of the peace of the town of Shandaken. At present he was proprietor of Clancy's Grill in Phoenicia. He married the former Miss Maude Hoyt of Phoenicia and in addition to his wife is survived by two sons and a daughter.

Apparently Tyler was not struck by the first charge but after the second shooting his clothing was peppered with shots.

At Tyler's Place

Prior to the shooting Ford is said to have been seated at Tyler's place of business adjoining the Clancy Grill. He had his gun with him and he told people there he was going hunting. From Tyler's he apparently went outside Clancy's Grill when the two men made their charge on the men.

At the time of the shooting Clancy had his hands in his pockets and immediately after the second shot as Ford turned and walked away from threatening Mr. Hilson with his gun, Mr. Newman ran from his porch to the aid of the stricken man. As Clancy lay on the porch his hands were still in his pockets, indicating that he apparently had no idea that Ford intended to turn the gun on him and had no time to make any effort to defend himself.

When Mr. Newman saw that the shot had taken effect in the left side of Clancy's neck and abdomen he immediately called police and Dr. Quinn but medical aid was of no avail.

At the time Mr. Newman first

A resolution passed by the 7,500 delegates to the Albany convention provided for resubmission of the meeting place question to zone members "should the executive committee decide the 1939 convention take place at Saratoga Springs."

Promises Action

Paris, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Turkish government promised to take disciplinary action today against a sergeant of the Turkish army who killed a French lieutenant at Antioch, Syria. The lieutenant, Pierre Chabaud, was shot and killed by the sergeant after an altercation over the refusal of Turkish soldiers to salute the French officer.

Treasury Conference

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—A conference of treasury monetary advisers stirred speculation today on whether any change in this government's international financial policy was contemplated. The only official word regarding the meeting was an announcement by a spokesman for Secretary Morgenthau that the continued weakness of the British pound and the French franc were among the matters discussed. He declined to disclose what, if any, conclusions were reached.

Motion Pictures On Argentina

Three reels of motion pictures will be shown at the vesper service in the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Sunday, October 23. These films have been produced by the Board of Missions of the United Lutheran Church and relate to the work being done in Argentina. The two fields of operation in that country are located in the city of Buenos Aires and in the remote hinterland. The former field centers its activity in a city that is altogether modern and cosmopolitan; the latter field is active in an area that is inaccessible except by pack horse and airplane. These pictures were filmed on the field.

Inasmuch as a son of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, the Rev. J. Christian Port, is a missionary in Buenos Aires, these films should have a local appeal. He has been stationed there since last spring and expects to remain for seven years.

The public is invited to this service, which will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

Terrier Gets His Name From Latin Word 'Terra'

Terriers get their name from the Latin "terra," denoting the type of dog that "goes to earth," or in plain American digs and bears the quarry in its underground lair, observes Edwin McK. Johnson in the Chicago Daily News.

The breeds included in this variety group follow: Airedale, bedlington, bull terrier, cairn, dandie, dalmatian, fox terrier (smooth and wire-haired), Irish, Kerry blue, lakeland, lurcher, Manchester, schнауzer (miniature and standard), scottish, sealyham, skye, staffordshire, welsh and west highland white.

The fox terrier, probably best known of all is used on the fox hunt, when the fox goes underground. The fox terrier is usually carried by one of the hunt riders in a "knapsack" and goes into action when the larger hounds corner the quarry. The smooth coated and the wire coated, both being alike structurally. The wire coat, which appears on Welsh, Irish, airedale, scottish and others, is considered the perfect coat.

The smooth-coated terriers include the popular bull terrier and its cousin the staffordshire. Both are aggressive and courageous and with their well set-up bodies and power make fine protectors.

The Manchester terrier is one of the oldest varieties, being (like most others) from the original old English black and tan terrier stock.

The dandie dymott, roughly, has the appearance of the cairn, but is longer and lower in body. A mass of hair on the face identifies the long-slung skye terrier.

The Irish is one of the gamiest of the terrier family, having been used for such unbelievable work as lion hunting. The Kerry blue runs this breed a close second for courage. There are other terriers, better or less known, like border terriers and shassas.

Lakelands, like borders, take their name from localities and districts of England, as do airedales (Aire valley), Kerry (Kerry county) and staffordshires.

'Praying Mantid' Insect Lives in Warm Sections

The mantid (order orthoptera, family mantidae, genus mantis, species mantis religiosa), is a voracious, carnivorous insect, called also "praying mantis" from its habit, when watching for prey, of sitting up with its forefeet folded as in prayer. The French call it "prie dieu"; other names for it are "Johnny cockroach," and "soothsayer" (Greek mantis). These insects, which are slow in their motions, usually sit on the branches of trees and shrubs waiting for some other insect to pass, when they seize and hold it with their front feet, and tear it to pieces.

"Praying mantis" are most abundant in tropical regions, especially in Africa, where they are venerated by the Hottentots, but they are found also in the warmer parts of Europe, Australia, and America. The American species (stigmantis carolina), known as "rear-horse," "devil-horse," and "mule-killer," found in the Southern and Western states, devours caterpillars and insects and thus does much good. A South American species (mantis argenti) is said to catch and devour even small birds.

TOWNSEND PLAN NEWS

Nurses Extend Their Appreciation

Miss Marguerite Jacobson, associate executive secretary of the New York State Nurses Association, which recently held a regional conference in Kingston, on behalf of the board of directors of the association, has written the following letter expressing the thanks of the association for the co-operation extended here.

Her letter to the mayor reads as follows: "On behalf of the Board of Directors of the New York State Nurses Association I wish to thank you for the splendid cooperation which you gave us in connection with the institute which was held in your city last week."

"We appreciate all the courtesies which you extended and the use of the high school auditorium for two sessions.

"And last, but not least, we wish to express our appreciation for your splendid address of welcome. You made us feel very much at home and everyone attending the conference enjoyed your talk and Kingston very much.

"I do not know what kind of arrangement you have made with the weather, but you certainly gave us ideal weather.

"I know that our group will be looking forward with anticipation to another institute in Kingston at some future time.

"Again I thank you for all that you did to make our institute a success."

Speaker Gives Views on Life

"The greatest men are those who put the radiant things first in their thinking, and that is what I would like to have you do," Frederic Snyder, local lecturer and traveler told students at the Moran Business School yesterday morning.

Mr. Snyder reminded his listeners that the most beautiful and valuable things in the world cost nothing. Air, sunlight, trees and all the beautiful things of nature, he said, are free, and the mental wealth of the world is free.

He reminded the group that the smile advertises to the world that our souls are at home and true life is the one that rings onward. In the study of vibration, great wonders will unfold. By throwing the vibration of a bell back into the bell, it is smashed to bits. If the law of your life is to reverse the vibration, you too, will be annihilated.

Mr. Snyder advised the students to make use of English, not American slang. Never use profanity, unless you wish to lose your power. The man who rants and tears around every morning never has a bit of attention paid to him, but the man who utters only two "damns" a year, causes the very walls of the house to vibrate, the pictures to fall from the wall. Profanity never expresses what you want to say as well as English used correctly; it is a sign of weakness and of slender vocabulary. It doesn't get results. Read the right things and clean your mind. Throw out low words and turn to others that have power, beauty and expression.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Aircraft pointed the way to a brisk but selective upswing in today's stock market and leaders, at the best, scored gains running to 3 or more points.

The bulge tempted profit-takers, however, and top marks were reduced in many cases near the close. Numerous new recovery peaks were touched in the first hour's advance. The ticker tape got behind for a while and transfers were in the neighborhood of 1,300,000 shares.

Steel was next to the air-placed group in popularity. Motors followed more leisurely. A few rails and rubbers attracted followings. Utilities held to a somewhat restricted range.

Optimism seemed to have received fresh stimulation by the action of Douglas Aircraft directors, after yesterday's close, in voting a $3 dividend, the first since September, 1935, when 75 cents was declared. The company also announced 8 months' net earnings of $3.19 a share, the best in its history against $1.49 in the comparable 1937 months.

Another bolstering influence was seen in wage increases posted by Douglas Aircraft and Wickwire Spencer Steel, among others, in addition to the action of the Chrysler Company in joining General Motors in restoring salary cuts instituted last March.

Oils marked time notwithstanding chances for further production regulations in this field were thought to be much better. Retail store stocks did little as the Federal Reserve Board reported department store sales were off 18 per cent from last year for the week ended October 15. Merchants blamed unseasonable weather for the recession.

Prominent on the climb, beside Douglas Aircraft, were United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Kennecott, American Telephone, Loew's, National Lead and International Nickel.

Industrial issues showed a gain for the day of 0.63 point, to 152.15; rails were up 0.14 point, to 31.13; utilities were down 0.31 point for the day, closing at 23.53.

It was announced last night that the price range on Chevrolets had dropped $20 to $51 on the various models.

Caroladings gained 23.648 for the week, a more than seasonal gain and less than ten per cent below the same week in 1937. Auto production was estimated at 85,360 units for the week, new high to date for the year. There was a total of $14,033,000 in new bond offerings as against $8,900,000 in the same period last year.

Not so favorable a picture was found in the report of department store sales for the week ending October 15. According to the Federal Reserve Board sales were down 18 per cent from those in the same period last year, whereas in the preceding week the drop was but eight per cent. Largest drop was in the Dallas and Chicago areas, 23 per cent. Next smallest in Atlanta area, with a drop of eight per cent. In New York and Brooklyn area sales were off 16.5 per cent, with the unseasonably warm weather apparently a factor.

Steel output in the Youngstown district is scheduled at 61 per cent of capacity for next week, a new high for more than a year and an advance of four points over this week.

Douglas Aircraft ordered a dividend of $3 a share. This is the first payment since September 27, 1935, when 75 cents was paid.

As progress is made on the government-sponsored program for a billion dollars expansion in the utility field there is seen the possibility that volume of the electric power equipment industry may approach the 1939 level. It was but recently revealed that a program for large scale utility construction, as part of a national defense measure, was being planned. Following conferences between utility representatives and government officials.

It is stated that the New York Stock Exchange has reduced its operating expense by nearly a million dollars this year, but is still operating "in the red" and will probably show a deficit for the year. A cut in salaries saved about $500,000; waiving of committee fees saved around $140,000 more.

Reports of income for the quarter ended September 30, included: Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, deficit of $328,069. Procter & Gamble, net of $6,097,510. 92 cents a share, vs. $5,044,338, or 75 cents a share in the 1937 period. E. I. du Pont de Nemours, net of $12,350,713, or 95 cents a share, vs. $22,563,289, or $1.92 a share in 1937. Allis-Chalmers, $505,160, vs. $2,664,588. Studebaker Manufacturing, $258,521, $1.05 a share, vs. $324,148, or $1.48 a share. Douglas Aircraft, $728,815 (Aug. 31 quarter), vs. $326,973 last year. Hercules Powder, $741,401, vs. $1,246,811. E. G. Budd Manufacturing Co., deficit of $346,825, vs. net in the 1937 quarter of $107,465.

Douglas Aircraft, which had net of $1.81 August 31, more than those of any previous full year, has raised wages 2 1/2 cents an hour, retroactive to October 1. It will cost the company $300,000 or more a year. Wickwire Spencer Steel Co. announced a 12 1/2 per cent wage increase, effective October 31. Chrysler Co. restores cuts to salaried employees receiving $300 a month or less.

Approximately 1,000 Iowa truck drivers went on strike yesterday. The operating property of the Citizens Light & Power Co., a Cities Service unit, was acquired yesterday by the Consumers Power Co., subsidiary of Commonwealth & Southern. This is a definite step toward utility integration, under the "death sentence" utility act.

Upstate's Swing Enheartens Dewey

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Heartened by reports of support gained during his up-state swing, Thomas E. Dewey today carried to Long Island voters his campaign to become New York's first Republican governor since 1922.

The young Manhattan district attorney, enthusiastic over the receptions accorded him during the week at Rochester, Rome and Utica, will address a rally at Timber Point, Great River, near Islip, in the afternoon (2:30 p. m.) after conferring with the Suffolk county Republican committee.

Dewey maintained silence on Mayor LaGuardia's statement yesterday that he would not support Lehman for re-election unless the governor declared himself for the New Deal, but delivered a jab at his opponent's claim of a balanced budget.

In a brief speech last night at a University of Michigan alumni banquet, Dewey said:

"We have heard him (Gov. Lehman) say how he had balanced the budget and wiped out the deficit. Well, we have seen a lot of figures here and in Washington which look quite astronomical. But try to break them down and get your own ideas of them. That is what I am going to put down on paper."

East Kingston Hunters Released After Arrest

A combination of kind-hearted judge and sympathetic complainant resulted in two East Kingston men being let off with suspended sentence when arraigned before Justice Clarence Traver of Rhinebeck yesterday.

The men, Thomas Gallo, 38, and his brother-in-law, James Natale, 16, were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Lates and Cashin, charged with hunting on posted property, the Merritt estate at Rhinebeck.

Gallo, who was carrying a gun, was found guilty of hunting on posted property and fined $12.50. Natale was fined $5. Neither of the defendants had money and the justice, Miss Merritt consenting, suspended execution of the sentences and allowed the two to go, after a strong reprimand.

There have been numerous complaints of trespassing and hunting on the Merritt estate, which adjoins that of Vincent Astor at Rhinebeck and game protectors of the district, which is part of the territory of the Kingston office of the Conservation Department, have been investigating the complaints.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Father Knickerbocker—with the help of the WPA—is spending $21,321,400 to have his face lifted for the 1939 World's Fair here. The federal government will foot 94 per cent of the bill. The job of cleaning up 15,000 vacant lots, draining swampy areas and landscaping city-owned land will be done by 24,000 WPA workers in the next 12 months.

Harvey W. Clancy Is Shot to Death

saw Mr. Clancy and Mr. Tyler they were about half way from the porch to the door. It was then the first shot was fired. Mr. Tyler gained the doorway before the second shot, which missed, was fired but Mr. Clancy was shot just as he was about to enter the grill.

Others who were in the vicinity also took refuge inside when the shot was fired. As Mr. Clancy fell Mr. Newman started from the street to his aid. When the actual shot was fired Ford was hidden from the view of Mr. Newman by a parker car, but he immediately reappeared and started toward the grill station and as he walked away it was then he encountered Ranger Dave Hillson and raised his gun at the ranger.

Apparently the shooting took place over a real estate deal. Mr. Ford sold to Mr. Clancy his home in the village a day or two ago. It is reported that the house was sold for $900 and that Mr. Clancy paid $400 cash to Mrs. Ford and Mr. Ford took a $500 mortgage for the balance.

Later, it is stated, Mr. and Mrs. Ford apparently discussed the deal and Mr. Ford determined he had sold the property too cheap and repenting the act is said to have wanted the property transferred back to him. Apparently the offer was refused and it is believed that shooting was the outcome of brooding over sale.

Polish Mountains Once Haunt of Queer Animals

There is one place in a prosaic, skeptical world where true believers and scoffers can visit a dragon's cave. The cavern is located in Poland, deep in the foundations of the Wweli, the Acropolis of Cracow. The entrance is at the top of the hill, but the cavern goes down nearly to the level of the Vistula river, which sweeps around the base of the mountain.

A long flight of steps winds downward through a shaft lined with crystalline rock. At the bottom there are guards to keep visitors from straying off into the passages and grottoes away from the fabulous creature's main lair, because he lived in a labyrinth, as all authentic dragons did.

The story of the dragon of Cracow dates back to a time when the city was a settlement of a few hundred fishermen. That would be something over a thousand years ago. The dragon issued forth from his den when supplies ran low and dragged back into it members of fishermen's families; usually the good-looking daughters.

The villagers appealed to Krak, or Krakus, in old Latin accounts, a local hero. Krak was cagey and ingenious as well as brave. He caused a well-dressed sheep to be stuffed with coal, pitch, sulphur, charcoal and other high temperature fuels and thrown to the dragon. The dragon died, presumably as a result of spontaneous internal combustion. The city was renamed in honor of Krak.

Then the river-side opening into the cave was blocked up to guard against invading enemies gaining the hilltop through that back door. Some believe that the dragon may have been the Polish forest, marshes and mountains were the haunts of queer animals up to within modern times.

Chief Explains Mutual Aid Plan

Highland, Oct. 21—Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston explained regulations of the mutual aid plan, designed to insure greater protection against fire loss throughout the county at a meeting of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at Highland recently. A group of 150 firemen representing about 20 companies attended.

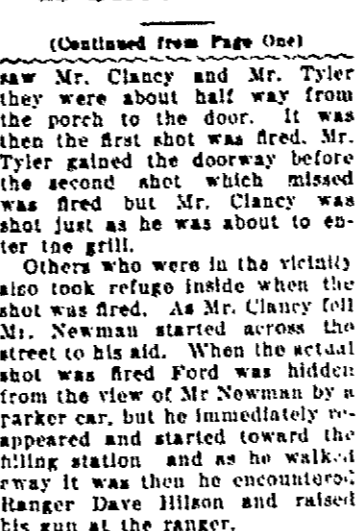

O. S. Ingraham, vice president of the association presided over part of the meeting when it became necessary for Adam Huling of Wallkill, the president, to take early leave.

It was voted to hold the next meeting at New Paltz. The place for the December meeting was decided but the January meeting will be held at Rosendale. An effort will be made to secure companies at Pine Hill, Gardiner and Binnewater as members of the Association.

RECOVERY
"Everybody I see or hear from is moderately hopeful," said Jesse Jones, head of the R.F.C., the other day. "Business is a little bit better. Railroads are showing a little more improvement."
Compared with recent statements of many business economists, notably Roger Babson, this might be called a masterpiece of understatement. It has been possible to read in scores of newspaper business columns lately that "all the business signs are good." Many reputable authorities have suggested that this upward movement in employment and business activity might be the start of "a real recovery."
There have been so many bitter disappointments that it is wise for business prophets not to stick their necks out, and for the public not to jump prematurely to the conclusion that the millennium is beginning. But excessive pessimism is worse than excessive optimism, for people's hopes and beliefs are in themselves part of the stuff that makes prosperity.
Government spending, of course, has a good deal to do with this business revival. Yet it may be that the time has come for it to develop through natural forces, plus popular optimism, into the real thing. There are countless needs to be supplied, quite aside from armament, and if the nation wills it and believes it, and business and government cooperate, we can go ahead and supply them on a scale that will turn every wheel and keep busy every pair of willing hands.

AUTONOMOUS COLLEGES
An interesting problem, new to Americans, arises in Cambridge, Mass. Harvard College seems to have grown so big and powerful that it is, so to speak, swinging the municipality by the tail. And that is quite a feat, when you consider that Cambridge is a city of more than 1,100,000 people.
The city fathers wouldn't mind so much if that great, rich college with its vast real estate holdings and endowments of nearly $140,000,000, paid taxes like ordinary business institutions, and if the students behaved like regular citizens. But as a non-profit institution the college is exempt from taxation, and it is said to pay nothing for city services, while students and faculty are accused of "trading with university organizations instead of private dealers." Moreover, it is well known that students on occasion make nuisances of themselves and seem to think they are above the law.
Worse still, the college people are accused of treating the city like a "guinea pig," in insolent and annoying experiments. So the city council will ask the state government to incorporate the university as a separate jurisdiction, authorized to provide for itself all services now furnished by Cambridge. It would become virtually a city within a city, like some foreign universities.
Many another town will realize how the Cambridge government feels about it. Here is a modern version of the ancient feud between "town and gown." The change demanded would be an interesting experiment. It might prove costly, however, to both sides. It looks like a case for arbitration.

NUTS IN AUSTRALIA
News comes that "a wave of crazy contests" is sweeping Australia. Seemingly normal people engage in such sports as pushing peanuts with their noses. Wheelbarrow marathons are common. This stunt involves a wheelbarrow and two men, one to ride and one to push.
During the World War it was discovered that the Australians were more like the Americans than any other members of the British Empire, and it seems to be proved by these aberrations. They are not new, either. In 1854 an Australian won fame of a sort by picking up thirty eggs with his mouth without touching the ground with his knees and presumably without breaking any of the eggs.
A few years earlier another Australian bet real money that he could pick 100 cobs of corn a yard apart in fifty-five minutes. He seems to have done it, too. There's no accounting for human foolishness, but it's nice to know that we are not the only flagpolesitters, this-and-that marathoners, and so on.

PHOSPHATES FOR PEACE
A student of such matters tells us that exhaustion of phosphate from the soil, resulting in a shortage of phosphate in the human diet, produces biological unbalance in a nation. This is expressed in a high birth rate and a hysterical mentality. It is one of the things that make Germany, Italy and Japan the problems they are today. The phosphate is abundant in Scandinavian countries, where they take it chiefly from the sea. That is why their people are generally calm and level-headed.
This suggests a simple alternative to the rearmament race. Why not send great supplies of phosphates to the countries lacking them and persuade the hysterical peoples to eat them? Within a year or two they'd begin to calm down, and cooperate with, instead of antagonize, the rest of the world.
When Henry Ford gets that "artificial milk" he talks about, will we have to milk a flivver, or just open a spigot on the instrument board?

THAT BODY OF YOURS
By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.
THE BEST TIME TO EXERCISE
A recent magazine article on exercise suggested that exercise immediately after arising in the morning was harmful because the temperature of the body, the blood pressure, and the heart rate were at a low ebb. Naturally the blood pressure, heart rate, and body temperature are at their lowest because there is no food in the process of digestion and the food eaten at the last meal the night before has long since given its entire heat and energy to the body. The first thing the body really needs then is food, not exercise, and few athletes—boxers, bicyclists, runners—go out to engage in hard exercise without taking a little food to 'stay' their stomachs.
At a military camp the commanding officer wondered why so many of the men fainted at the getting up exercises of thirty minutes at 6:30 a. m. I suggested a slice of bread and some hot tea or coffee before the exercise as breakfast was not served until 8 a. m. By this simple method all the men were able to take the exercise without collapsing.
To the average man under fifty years of age, a few minutes light exercise in the morning as soon as he leaves his bed should not cause any distress or harm. No food is really required. It should be more of a stretching and loosening up of the body than an attempt to develop muscle. It is a healthful habit as it keeps the body more resilient or elastic thus preserving youth.
For men over fifty hard exercise before breakfast might be a shock because of the lowness of the body forces at this time.
What is the ideal time for the average business or professional man to take exercise?
If he has (as most do) eaten a light breakfast and a light lunch he should eat a piece of candy or an orange or a banana, or bread or biscuit at 4 or 5 o'clock and then take his exercise—golf, riding, gymnastics, walking, tennis (if young). He should have his exercise finished a half to an hour before his evening meal so that his appetite and digestive forces will be at their best. Eating the large evening meal when tired is the cause of many stomach and intestinal upsets.
Light exercise—stretching and bending—is helpful before retiring as it draws the blood away from the brain.

Don't Marry the Man

By JEANNE BOWMAN

The Characters
Kathleen Gregory goes West incognito to secure a right-of-way for the Gregory mine shaft from MacDonald.
Donald MacDonald: hates the Gregorys.
Bridget: Kathleen's companion.
Yesterday: Kathleen's father asks her to get the papers proving priority of claim from Balmly. In a violent quarrel Kathleen refuses.
Chapter 21
Up In Flames
DOWNSTAIRS Donald MacDonald paced the floor and came to a stop before his mother to utter a few words, then pace on.
"I didn't eavesdrop," he protested. "I only heard a few words, just enough to know that there is a letter which will prove priority of claim of the Gregorys; that she, as I've suspected at times, and forced myself to deny at others, is The Golden Girl; and that her father has ordered her to get that document away from the old man. She will. He's crazy about her."
Mrs. MacDonald shook her head. "And because he is, as you call it, crazy about her, he'll never give it to her. You know Balmly as well as I do. Balmly's love for all men is kind is greater than his love and loyalty to The Golden Girl. That very loyalty would prevent him from putting a weapon into her hands. You know his beliefs. He'd feel he was harming her."
"But imagine rotters who'd play the game that way; who'd hate a family enough to want to wreck them!"
"Son," interposed his mother. "Your father would have hated Angus Gregory enough to do the same thing. You know I adore Donald's memory. I'd be the last one to stain it before his son, but truth is truth. And you haven't exactly loved them yourself, my boy."
"Loved them!" exclaimed Donald. "I hate them! I detest every hair in that girl's head; understand, detest it and her everything she stands for. I want her out from under this roof tomorrow morning."
"I think you'd better go to the hotel and stay there until I send for you," Mrs. MacDonald arose, a regal little figure, her face frozen into unrelenting lines. "This is my house until you marry, and I'll have no hatred despoiling it."
"I'm sorry, mother," he stood before her, contrite for the harm he had done her. "But I... oh—"
"I know, dear," Her hand stroked the head, bowed to her shoulder. "I know so much more than even you know... about yourself."
When Kathleen came down in the morning her eyes were still slightly swollen, and her manner apologetic. Bridget was manifestly worried. She had tried to reason with her before she had left her the previous night.
"I know your father better than you do," she had insisted. "He was just talking. That's the best thing he does. He's baffled. He's found something he can't buy and he's trying to bluster his way to it. He'd never do anything really wrong."
But Kathleen wasn't so sure. She sipped orange juice, nibbled at toast and sipped coffee. "Mrs. MacDonald," she said suddenly. "Balmly had the Gregorys to tea yesterday. They're staying on for a few days. I feel we've imposed upon you long enough. We'll move down to the hotel today."
"You'll not mind of the kind," retorted Mrs. MacDonald.
'Neutral Ground'
"But... you don't understand." Kathleen protested miserably. "We... yesterday they talked of the feud and the right-of-way and... well we've seen a lot of the Gregory people, the miners, more than we have of the MacDonalds and... my sympathy is with them. I can't break bread with you under the circumstances."
Mrs. MacDonald laughed gaily. "Bless your heart, now you have to stay here. I've stayed here this feud. This is my house, though the mine is in my son's control. Won't you consider this neutral ground? As far as the Gregorys are concerned, they and their sympathizers, I wouldn't care if you were The Golden Girl herself. Personally, I've admired what I've heard of her. It's always seemed a pity to me that such a spirited girl could find so much fine outlet for her talents."
Kathleen found herself in the woman's arms. "I could almost like Donald for being your son," she whispered, and was surprised at the laugh this evoked.
Joey-wide-eyes, perched on the rear barrier fence, whistled a queer flute-like tune. Entranced the girls looked out to see him frantically looking.
"The Angus Goldman desires parley with person in owner of car," he shrieked.
Bridget sighed. "That means me," she said, and donned wraps. She returned an hour later to find Kathleen alone.
"He wants to drive to the mine," Bridget explained briefly, then launched into the real mission. "And more than anything, he wanted to have me assure you he hadn't meant what he said last night. He'll bargain with Balmly as you would have bargained."

Kathleen relaxed for the first time. "Oh, I'm glad. Belief in the integrity of your family means so much, Bridget."
She remained at the window, laughing heartily at her father trying to control the old car as it bucked down the hill with clanking chains, and then she stiffened.
The moment the car was out of sight, Beatrice Gregory had appeared. For a moment she scanned the MacDonald lodge, then as though assured no one was watching, set off across the drifts towards the mine trail.
Beatrice Gregory had questioned Old Balmly about that letter which he had given her. Kathleen remembered. Kathleen wasted a few moments arguing with herself, berating herself for her suspicions. But couldn't that have been her father's reason for reassuring her? Hadn't he been trying to throw her off guard?
She thrust her arms into a white ski coat she had made from a Hopi blanket, pulled a white stocking cap over her curls, donned goggles, and set forth in the wake of her aunt. It was easy enough to follow her tracks. They led, as Kathleen had suspected, to the summer mine trail, then back towards Balmly's cot.
Kathleen came quietly up on the terrace and peered in through a window. Beatrice sat before the table, a sheaf of letters spread before her, a stack of envelopes to one side, the right side. Her face was obscured by the blue smoke of her cigarette.
'You Can't Do This'
SOFTLY, swiftly, Kathleen slipped around the house to the front door. Beatrice couldn't do this. She found she wasn't fighting for Old Balmly; she wasn't trying to protect the MacDonalds, she was trying to protect her belief in the integrity of her own people.
Opening the door she stepped in. Beatrice was no longer smoking, both hands were occupied with opening another envelope.
"Aren't you proud of yourself," observed Kathleen.
Beatrice Gregory started, then laughed. "We should have employed you as a detective instead of a vampire; we'd have had better results." She went on reading.
"Aunt Bee, you can't do this. I shan't let you."
"Do what?" groaned the woman. "Didn't my own father write these letters? Haven't I the right to read them?"
"Not without Balmly's permission, but is that all you intend doing?"
"Oh, stop your unmitigated moralizing. You weren't too noble to use your own method of gaining the right-of-way. All I'm trying to do is learn if the information these contain is worth the price your father is paying for them."
"Paying?" echoed Kathleen. "You mean Balmly will sell them?"
"Don't be bigger than your necessity," Mrs. Gregory retorted. "I'm speaking of the replacement of cots. Ah," she exclaimed in triumph, "this letter is dated June 17. That means the next will have the story of the strike and fling."
It was then she screamed.
Kathleen saw a tiny spiral of smoke burst into rosy flame. The next moment the flame had lifted at the old, under dry letters, lifted them into a whirling blaze, ran in stream down the table cover to the fringe. The top of the round table was an inferno and in the center lay Balmly's Bible, an ancient web-foot book given him by his mother and prized above all possessions.
The whole scene had changed in a second. Kathleen rushed forward and slapped at the flames with her bare hands, crushed the palm of them down over the cloth; pressed the fragment left over the book, then smothered the book to her.
The rear door had opened. Old Balmly, breathing heavily, had entered. He looked at Kathleen but spoke to Beatrice. "I trust you are satisfied, Miss Gregory. You've made the decision for us."
"But it's not the end of the matter," said Kathleen. "The letters were flung. Proof of the claim's priority had been destroyed for all time."
Gently, Balmly took the book from Kathleen and she was aware of her hands. The palms were scarred, quivering areas of agony. And she was aware of her position. It was as compromising as that of Beatrice's. She'd never before realized how much this queer old fellow's regard meant to her.
She could explain. But then again she couldn't. Beatrice was her aunt; a Gregory. She met his questioning eyes and her own, filmed with tears of pain, were veiled with lashes, lest he read the answer.
"Splendid work, lass," he commended. "We must get you to the hospital. Angus Gregory is steaming up his blood."
With surprising agility he rushed out to stop Gregory, then rushed back to wrap the hands with soft linen and to help Kathleen and Beatrice into the car.

Sundown Stories

Puddle Muddle Sundown
THEY had gone a long distance by the time that Christopher had spoken of the sun going down, and yet they had not known quite how far they had got along when suddenly Rip shouted in his barking, happy voice:
"See Puddle Muddle!"
Willy Nilly stopped the automobile Two-Ways and the Puddle Muddlers got out of it and also out of the trailer.
"We were nearer home than you thought, eh?" asked Willy Nilly. But the Puddle Muddlers were too happy to speak. They overlooked Puddle Muddle, and the red sun was casting a glow over their dear bumps and ruts, over Willy Nilly's house, Top Notch's General Store, Sweet Face's meadow, the bears' cave, the ducks' pond and—in the distance—over Quackerville.
"We're tired," said Willy Nilly. "But we'll drive on through and then we can rest."
They all agreed that this was a good idea.
In no time at all they were striking their own bumpy roads and were climbing the twisting, rough hill that led to Willy Nilly's.
The sun had gone down. Twilight had come to Puddle Muddle. The Puddle Muddlers stretched their wings, their legs and even bended down and patted their dear familiar earth.
"We're home," they said.
"We've had a beautiful time, but now we're home," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow.
"Shall we unpack?" asked Mrs. Quacker.
"No, my dear, you run along. They'll be waiting for you in Quackerville," quacked Mrs. Quacko. She waddled off.
And now, with Willy Nilly in the center, the rest fell asleep. They were too tired to look at anything, but it was happy for them they were home.
Once Willy Nilly awoke for a moment and looked up and saw the stars shining down and it seemed as though the stars were twinkling with happiness too.

WASHINGTON—An American corporation has a contract with the German Zeppelin company to lease a Zeppelin for transatlantic traffic—if and when it can shake 20 million cubic feet of helium gas from the tight clutches of Secretary of the Interior Ickes.
The contract under which this arrangement was reached is one of the unexpected things drawn up in the drag-net law enacted by the last congress. It requires the registration of all agencies in the United States which have foreign connections.
The company with the contract is American Zeppelin Transport, Inc., of New York. There is nothing secretive or subversive about its contract with the German Zeppelin company. Its whole purpose, as outlined in the contract made public by the state department under terms of the alien-agency roundup, is to launch a transatlantic Zeppelin service with an American company sharing in the business on a fifty-fifty basis with the German company.
The German company is obligated to supply Zeppelin experts if a ship is to be built here, as well as to train an operating crew for the American vessel regardless of where the U. S. company gets it. The American company already has contracted with the German company to lease a German ship at a rental of 1,633,000 Reichmarks (about $650,000) a year. That contract also is valid only "if and when" the American company can get 20 million feet of helium, of which the United States has a virtual monopoly.
There is one unique clause in the contract. It provides that neither company may sign a contract with a third party to lease a Zeppelin unless both companies are allowed that privilege. In other words, the American company could not arrange for landing privileges in England or France unless it also obtained that privilege for the German company.
The Hope For Helium
INCIDENTALLY, the contract indicates the company still has hope that Secretary Ickes—or a later secretary—will reverse the action of a year ago which denied American helium to Germany for use in the Zeppelin service.
At that time Ickes held that helium placed in the hands of Germany would be available for war service, contrary to the law which specifies that it could be sold abroad only for non-military purposes. The law was enacted immediately after the Hindenburg disaster when 36 persons were killed in the explosion of the big bag of hydrogen gas.
The contract lapses as soon as the American company feels there is no hope of getting the 20 million cubic feet of helium necessary as a starter. Although Ickes repeat-

NEW YORK—Personal notes of a New Yorker's cuff: Thornton Wilder thinks the world's two loveliest cities are Vienna and Chicago, in that order. He placed Vienna first because it has a greater topographical charm, which is to say, a more natural beauty. Elsa Lancaster, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Laughton, describes Lake Michigan as a body of water about the size of England.
It's the "hoboe" that interests Joe Rines at the moment... This band leader crossed a violin with an Oboe and wound up with something you've never seen before—hence the name "hoboe"... You've got a lot a nerve to presume to improve on the old masters," glibbed an onlooker. "What about that guy Burbank?" shot back Rines, "he crossed a lemon with an orange and got a grapefruit."
AMONG the many who listened with enthusiasm to the Met opera's plans for the coming year was a honey-haired girl from Marshall, Texas, whose aspirations and talents lie definitely in the Met's direction. She is Lucia Graesser, 24, and already she has appeared on programs with such noted stars as Lauritz Melchior, Ezio Pinza, Gertrude Lawrence, Walter Hampden, Cornelia Otis Skinner, and others. Has a yen for Italian opera and is studying Italian now... One of her most enthusiastic devotees is Mr. Edward Johnson, general manager of the Met.

Midway during the first act a late comer slipped into his seat directly behind Sabu, touched him on the shoulder, and remarked: "Lucky, would you please remove your hat—I can't see." Sabu yanked off his turban, but he was so puffed that he was puffed.

A Letter

Here is a letter from a father which we suggest to be read to every applicant for a driver's license:

"A wave of the hand, a kiss blown to the breeze, from the sweetest little pal in the world. I stood for some moments watching her, a chubby little figure in blue and white. To me an extremely important little person, on her way to school. And then she turned the corner.

"It must have been about 4 o'clock—my mind has been sort of deadened since that—the boss sent for me. 'Bob,' said he, laying his hand on my shoulder, 'there's been an accident. You'd better hurry up to the house.'

"Well, there isn't much more to tell. That little pal of mine—she—well, she wasn't at the window watching for me as usual. For an instant I faltered. It just seemed as though something within me went dead, and I had to fight hard for breath.

"In a little while I went out to the gate, just as I had that very morning, and I looked down the street as best I could. Right over there, a short block away, was where she turned the corner and passed forever out of my life."

"Today it was my little girl. Tomorrow or next day it will be someone else's little boy or little girl, just as dear as mine."

"And so on, from day to day, until the conscience of men shall cry a halt to this passion for fast driving in localities where danger lurks. If they could but know of the fear-stained pillows and the broken hopes they cause, we might have some hope, but I guess it must come home to them before they can know."

A woman motorist was driving along a country road when she noticed a couple of repairmen climbing telephone poles.

"Fools!" she exclaimed to her companion, "they must think I never drove before."

There are two things that always attract lots of attention anywhere and one of them is a good looking new automobile.

Courtship A La Mode

In old New York he met his love, a traveling in a trailer; In Tennessee, by stars above, he swore he'd never fall her.

He wooed her in the sunny South, while they were gaily roaming; He followed her through flood and drought, and won her in Wyoming.

They married at the next milestone, and then went home to Dover; To build a trailer of their own, and tour the wide world over.

Boy—Say, will you change this quarter for me?
Grocer—Sure! What do you want it changed for?
Boy—"Cause mother thinks it's a bad one."

Florence—Your fiance is a charming man. He has a certain something.
Helen—Yes, but I would rather he had something certain.

Mapping the News—Japan Hits China From South

By The U.P. Feature Service

The European situation has dominated the headlines the last few weeks, but a lot's been happening in China, too. This map helps bring you to date. Biggest development has been the landing of Japanese troops in the vital railroad running to China's beleaguered capital, Hankow. Hundreds of thousands of civilians have fled before the invaders. Note that the drives may effect British interests in and around Hongkong.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Just when it looked as if the world had gone to pot, and the international goosie was in it, hanging low, a little note plopped cheerily on this desk.

Mr. Mickey Mouse, the note informed, was celebrating his tenth birthday with a few movin' pictures, and would we?

If you want to be critical, I think you'll find "The Ugly Duckling" the prize offering among the new Disneyes. This is the Disneyish interpretation of the Andersen fairy tale, and it's as touching as it is beautiful and funny.

"Goofy and Wilbur" introduces a new and distinguished character in the Disney menagerie. That's Wilbur, a versatile, dynamic and chipper little grasshopper who looks startlingly like Harry Langdon. Wilbur is Goofy's pal and aide in fishing. Wilbur skates across the water, lures the fish into a chase which winds up in Goofy's net. But Wilbur miscalculates once, and things look MIGHTY bad. If you don't fall for Wilbur you'd better see your doctor.

The rambunctious Mr. Duck is with us again in "Donald's Lucky Day." Donald, the unsuspecting messenger boy, carries a time bomb—and the day is Friday the 13th. It's fast and funny, one of the raucous Donald's triumphs.

"The Practical Pig" revises the famed porky tripe which in 1933 brightened a depressed world.

"The Farmyard Symphony" offers country life with poetic humor—and romance, too, between the stately rooster and the beautiful white pullet. Also some grand opera as you've never heard it before.

Mickey Mouse is "The Brave Little Tailor," with Minnie as the Princess whose hand he wins after bagging the terrible giant. The catch (for Mickey) is that he is assigned to giant-killing through a misunderstanding. But you know Mickey. He comes through.

"Mother Goose Goes Hollywood" is a hilarious procession of nursery rhymes portrayed by characters you might mistake for Katharine Hepburn, Hugh Herbert, Garbo, Ed G. Robinson et al., if you skipped the forward about any resemblance to actual characters living or dead, etc. The Hepburnish Little Bo-Peep is perfect.

Wait took a drastic step in "Ferdinand the Bull." It's the first time he ever bought a current best-seller for filming. Naturally, some people will be around saying, "But he changed the book!" He did, so slightly that you'll have to look closely to see where. I liked "Ferdinand" because Disney can do no wrong!

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

Headlines of 1938

Some headlines of 1938 are decidedly high-hat. Sally Victor proves it with a tilted chapeau of brown velvet covered with a fountain of plumage.

Earmuffs belong to Parisians, as well as lumberjacks, this year. These, attached to a blue felt bonnet, are lined with light blue ostrich. Design by Agnes.

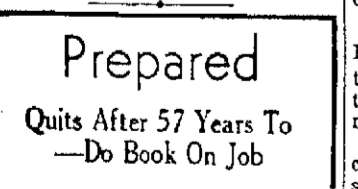

Veils soften many headlines of 1938. This one swatches a black felt town sailor with ostrich tips curving above its felt crown. Howard Hodge designed it.

The Zouave's chechia inspired this one. Sally Victor makes it of plum, purple and mist-blue velvet and catches its drape with a jeweled gold head.

An ostrich tassel conceals a low coiffure and makes something unique in headlines. Howard Hodge uses it on a tilted black felt hat.

Styles For Older Women Have Dash

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Fashion Editor)

Party clothes for the American clubwoman have color and dash this year.

Warm wines and plum-purples, suave blue-greens and mist blues flatter faces which are frankly 40. And dresses are cut to amarten lines that are not as lithe as they used to be. The best are designed to reflect maturity and conceal face and figure faults.

New party hats for clubwomen are turbans of twisted velvet in such color blends as dark plum, grayed mauve and smoky blue. There also are fur-trimmed toques and dark felts with rolling brims and a splash of color in a wing trim.

Since hats can make or break the appearance of the mature woman, consider these profile tips before making a choice:

Mature women generally look best in hats with an upward lift to the brim. Drooping brim lines hide the face and emphasize any drooping lines in it.

The hat most becoming to a woman with a double chin is usually one with a moderate brim, whose lines or trimming call attention to the top of the head and, thus, away from the lower part of the face.

Short veils cut the face line and tend to increase its appearance of width. They should be avoided by women whose faces and necks are over-plump.

Now party dresses which the older woman can wear to bridge, an informal dinner or the theater, are designed of soft crepe or velvet in black and the new fall colors. The first thought in the selection of both fabric and design has been to achieve an effect of softness, flattering to the face and figure. Severity and heaviness are gone.

This clubwoman's frock of mossy black crepe is designed with a soft bodice and roomy sleeves which conceal arm faults. For bridge and an informal dinner later, it is given a bit of glitter with a gold metal brooch and bracelet set with simulated amethysts. Amethyst velvet ribbon trims the black felt hat with an uplift brim.

The clubwoman's problem of finding an evening dress she can wear on many occasions and which will conceal, instead of reveal, her figure faults, is settled with a long-sleeved floor-length frock or a décolleté evening gown topped by a long sleeved jacket.

These are the kindest of evening clothes to problem figures, since they tend to conceal big arms, thin necks and convex diaphragms.

Here are helps for choosing flattering party frocks for the woman whose weight is a worry. Softly fitting bodices and sleeves make the outlines of a big arm less definite. High, tight armholes and sleeves which fit closely tend to emphasize its size. A soft extension of an evening gown's shoulder line will cover a too-plump arm top and a reasonably high line under the arm will conceal an under-arm bulge. (These two defects often ruin the appearance of an older woman in evening clothes.)

A long straight bolero or a still longer jacket which fits easily at the waistline, camouflage the lines of a bulging diaphragm.

When You Want A Quick Dinner Turn To The Meal-In-One-Dish

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

You don't have to have that 5:30 kitchen rush every day in the week. You can have dinner ready to pop into the oven when the family gets home. In a half hour or so it will be ready to eat.

The secret, if you haven't surmised, is the casserole, or meal-in-one-dish, dinner. It fills a hungry family. And beside saving your time it also conserves fuel and is easy on the budget. One more advantage—it's an appetizing way to sell your family on left-overs.

Everything At Once

For instance, you can mix diced cooked meats, green beans and celery and cover them with left-over potatoes, thinned with gravy or cream, to form a new kind of crust.

Another simple trick is to cover cooked ham or pork and sliced apples or crushed pineapple with a sweet-potato topping. Merely blend the left-over sweet potato with some cream and a small amount of butter.

The big idea in serving a casserole dinner is to plan a menu of foods that can all be cooked at the same time. Figure on a baked fruit sauce of some kind, a crispy hot bread and a dessert like cottage or bread pudding or gingerbread.

Here's hurry-up casserole stunt: Open two medium-sized cans of baked beans, add a little warm water and spread a three-inch layer in shallow, buttered casserole. Add some chili sauce or catsup for extra flavor, if you like. Then lay strips of bacon, small sausage links or thinly cut pork chops over the beans. Cover the dish and bake twenty minutes. Uncover it then and bake it fifteen minutes more to brown it well. Fill up the oven with bran muffins and cook some raisin-stuffed apples for the dessert.

Fish Combination

Fish casseroles are hard to beat. Use salmon (or any favorite fish) and hard-cooked eggs.

Stuffed cubed steaks surrounded by rice in a new glass casserole makes a tasty, prepared-in-a-hurry dinner.

Add the fish to a savory cream sauce and pour into shallow baking dish. Top with halves of eggs, open sides up. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake about twenty minutes. Corn muffins, and butterscotch or upside-down pudding are good oven companions for this dish.

Left-over meat, cut into one-inch pieces, added to well-seasoned tomato sauce and cooked noodles, rice or macaroni makes a grand dish when cooked twenty minutes in buttered baking dish. Shape chopped raw meat, seasoned with parsley, onion, celery salt, salt and paprika, into two-inch balls. Roll in flour and brown in a small quantity of fat. Also brown some boiled rice in the same fat. Add gravy or milk to cover and cook two minutes. Transfer to a buttered casserole dish and bake twenty minutes.

Cubed Steak Casserole

4 cubed steaks, 1 lb.
¼ teaspoon salt dash of pepper

2 tablespoons flour
1 cup soft bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon onion, minced
2 tablespoons butter, melted
2 tablespoons water
1-3 cup uncooked rice
2½ cups canned tomatoes (No. 2 can)
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
Wipe steaks with a damp cloth, roll in the mixture of salt, pepper and flour. Make a dressing of crumbs, poultry seasoning, onion, butter and water. Lay each steak down, cut side up; on it place a quarter of the dressing. Fold each steak over its dressing and fasten with skewers, tooth picks, or string to form compact portions. Put the four stuffed steaks into a greased, shallow heat-resistant glass casserole, one quart size. Wash rice, place it around the meat rolls, pour tomatoes over all and add salt and bits of butter. Cover the casserole and bake in a moderate oven for an hour or until the steaks are tender and the rice is done.

Advice To First-Daters

By JOAN DURHAM

AP Feature Service Writer
How should a boy behave on his first date?

The answer is: Be as polite, charming and entertaining as possible.

You may make a few mistakes, of course. But don't worry too much about them and don't draw attention to them.

The chances are your girl is just as much in doubt as you are. For that reason she'll feel a lot more comfortable if her young man seems to know all the answers.

Her Parents

She—and her parents, too—will judge you by all sorts of little things. The way you open the door to let her go out first; the way you rise when her mother enters the room; the way you address her father as "Sir."

Have the evening planned before you ask her for the date. Ask her if she's busy Friday night. If she isn't, ask her if she'd like to go to a movie . . . or the class dance . . . or the club entertainment.

If your parents agree to lend you the family car, don't drive up in front of her house and honk the horn. Shell find out you have the car soon enough. Help her to her seat in the car before you get in.

If you go to the movies and there's a line at the ticket booth, suggest that she wait in the lobby for you. Then as you enter the lobby take off your hat and throw your coat over your arm.

The Coat Problem

When you are seated, offer to help her take off her coat. Hold the left side of her coat collar with your left hand, and the right side with your right hand. When she has removed both arms, be sure to arrange the coat across the back of her seat so it can't slip down and get wrinkled. Then sit with your own coat and hat across your knees—or put them in a vacant adjacent seat.

After the movie, if you like, you may offer to take her to get something to eat or drink. But don't keep her out until all hours. When you get her home don't stay too long.

And—final hint—whether you had a good time or not, tell her you did. You don't have to ask her for any more dates, but you do want to leave her feeling happy about the evening. For remember, she may be as worried about her first date as you are.

Select Your Perfumes The Way You Do Hats

A touch of perfume on the shoulder, demonstrated by film actress Shirley Ross, is one of the approved accents.

By BETTY CLARKE

(AP Feature Service Writer)
The correct perfume is as important an accent on chic as the proper hat or the right amount of jewelry.

Madame Jeanne Lanvin, the French dress designer, considers the use of perfume so important that she carefully instructs all her mannequins on the subject.

Don't just dab it on in the most convenient spots and call it done, she says. And don't use so much perfume that you might just as well have taken a bath in it, she warns.

Women who know their perfumes usually wear comparatively light, not too-exotic, scents in the daytime. Some even substitute eau de cologne for daytime wear.

They reserve their heavy perfumes for the evening. Occasionally they touch up their furs with the heavier odors.

Connoisseurs usually apply perfumes through atomizers. A little perfume goes a long way when an atomizer is used. If the atomizer happens to be of the leak-proof type there is also less loss through evaporation.

A number of experts hold that perfume should be applied to parts of the body covered by clothing. Used thus, the scent seems to come from within and it blends with the oils in the wearer's skin to make a truly individual combination.

When is the best time to put on perfume? Fifteen or 20 minutes before you plan to go out. Like make-up, it should have a chance to "set."

How can you tell whether or not a perfume is lasting? Put a few drops on your fingertips, then wash your hands several times. The aroma from a perfume that has reasonable lasting qualities should still be discernible.

Magic Garnishes

Garnishes often lend magic to simple foods. Here are some for topping creamed soups: chopped parsley or cress, dash of paprika or nutmeg, vegetables cut in fancy shapes, tiny strips of green peppers or pimientos, grated cheese, spoonful of whipped cream, a dash of horseradish mixed with whipped cream, small toasted crustons, and popped corn.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

That problem of what to wear after school is settled here with a soft ribbed sweater of gray-blue wool worn with a skirt of darker blue novelty crinkled flannel. The sweater is fastened with white pearl buttons and the skirt designed with group pleats.

Helps for Housewives

Cooked mushrooms, diced and mixed with chopped cooked browned bacon, salad dressing and a little minced onion, make a delicious filling for hot buttered toast sandwiches.

When buying bone roasts, be sure the butcher sends you the bones even if they have been removed. The bones can be used for making soups and stock for stews.

Here is a recipe for a popular peppermint ice cream. Soak for half an hour, one-third of a pound of peppermint stick candy and one cup of cream. Fold in one cup of whipped cream and freeze four hours in the mechanical refrigerator. Or cover securely in mold and bury four hours in five parts of chopped ice and one part coarse salt.

New Use for Pretzels

Pretzel crumbs make a tasty covering for small cheese balls served with salads or as appetizers. Freshen the pretzels by heating five minutes in a moderately hot oven. Cool and then roll into crumbs.

Dining Room Candles

Never include candles on the dining room table service unless they are to be used to supply needed light. Light them just before the guests enter.

Mrs. Lawrence Van Gonsic

Mrs. Lawrence Van Gonsic of 15 Jefferson avenue and the teacher of the 1 B Grade at School No. 6, will preside over the Kindergarten-Primary session at the 33rd annual meeting of the South Eastern Zone, New York State Teachers' Convention to be held in New York city October 28.

This is the first year that Kingston has had the privilege of making up a section of the program at one of the conventions and inasmuch as Kingston has been a member of the zone only a few years, it is quite an honor to have charge of such a large meeting. Up to four years ago the teachers from Kingston met in Schenectady, Troy and Albany with the Eastern Zone, but due to a desire on the part of the teachers to meet in New York city, Kingston became a member of the southeastern zone.

The Kindergarten-Primary Section for the kindergarten and grades 1, 2 and 3, was arranged by Mrs. Van Gonsic as chairman of the group, assisted by Miss Kathryn Fogarty of School No. 2. The section will meet Friday afternoon in the Grand Ballroom of the Pennsylvania Hotel. The address following the business meeting will be on "Modern Methods of Planning in the Primary Grades" and will be given by Roma Gans of Teachers' College, Columbia University. A second address on "What Shall Our Kindergarten-Primary Children Receive?" will be given by Alice Balgish of Sorbonne's Sons. Miss Balgish is also an authoress, one of her books being "The Little Wooden Farmer." She will also give the teachers a list of books for young children.

Other sections meeting in the afternoon will be the junior high school section, the intermediate section and the senior high school section. All the teachers will meet in the morning at the Manhattan Opera House for the general session. The main speaker will be Alexander Kerensky, whose topic will be "On Behalf of Democracy."

Man's Quest for Gold Is Traced Back to 2900 B. C.

It was once believed that the Mayas alone were among the ancient races that did not know the value of gold. Little gold was found in their great ruined temples that vie for sun with the chic trees in the Yucatan and Central American jungles, and although nuggets have been found lying near the sites of the southern Maya cities, the working of gold into jewelry and religious objects had not been considered a part of their culture, says the Detroit News.

When an earthquake broke open a temple at Copan, Honduras, and disclosed tombs filled with gold ornaments, the Central Americans were placed in the same category with the Aztecs, Toltecs and Peruvians of the Inca empire for appreciation of the yellow metal.

In Old World annals, the story of man's quest for gold has been traced back to at least 2900 B. C. in Egypt, when under the first dynasty there occurred the first recorded washing of gold. It was not long before man was aware that gold is to be found in practically all rocks—and in the sea water as well.

It is fairly definite that the Mayas were in touch, commercially, with people of a somewhat similar culture in Costa Rica, who made the delicately carved gold frogs and butterflies. Little by little the theory is being established that the pre-Columbian peoples of Central and South America carried on a flourishing international trade, not unlike that of later times, and it seems probable that the gold found in the Maya country was an import from other shores.

Mutual Aid Plan Gets First Test

The mutual aid and coverage plan for better fire protection in Ulster county, which was recently adopted by the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, had its first workout on Friday afternoon when a call was received by the Port Ewen Fire Department from the St. Remy Fire Department asking aid.

A fire had broken out in the cellar of the residence of Mrs. Hermon Kelley, one of the show places in St. Remy, and the firemen sought more aid in bringing the fire under control before there was any considerable damage to the house.

The Port Ewen Fire Department responded to the call and Fire Chief Matos of that department notified county headquarters that Port Ewen fire department was leaving its district to aid St. Remy.

While the Port Ewen firemen were in St. Remy, the Kingston fire department stood ready to respond to any call for a fire breaking out in Port Ewen.

The fire in the Kelley home was confined to the cellar, although there was some smoke damage in the house.

Board of Education To Share Policies

discussed the matter and finally decided that until the grading at the new school was completed it would be unwise to expend the money on permanent improvement of the lot. When grades are established a drainage system may have to be installed and this might involve tearing up the resurfaced area. It was voted to have some fill placed in until next spring. On motion of Trustee Rowland the Building Committee was empowered to make these temporary repairs.

Finance Report

The finance committee reported payroll for October amounting to $39,107.36 and vouchers to the amount of $49,678.05 of which $1,597.88 is for construction at the Myron J. Michael School and $2,601.56 was for payment for roads and sidewalks at the school.

Trustee Feeney for the Building committee reported that work at the Myron J. Michael School was practically completed with the exception of the walks and roadways. Lockers will be completed in a few hours, bleachers were in the gym and the school was practically completed except for minor matters. He invited the board to make an inspection of the building after the meeting and the members accepted. After a complete survey of the building it was pronounced as a "good job" in which the contractor had given "a lot for the money."

Work is still at a halt on the vocational school because of labor differences between the contractor and the men. The supplies and building committees were authorized to make purchase of certain equipment for the boiler room and other places in the school. Desks, piano, flag-pole, files and other supplies are now needed.

The board made arrangement for making payments for work done on the vocational school by the tenth of each month on certification of the architect. Trustee Katz for the supplies committee reported that all of the equipment for the Myron J. Michael School was here and installed, including the cafeteria supplies. The cafeteria was now in full use and giving excellent service he reported.

The rules committee moved that the next meeting be held November 18 rather than during the Thanksgiving holiday season. Trustee Rowland was named chairman of the new athletic committee with Trustees Lane and Feeney as the committee. It was reported that maroon blankets for use of the high school athletes had arrived.

The following report was submitted by Superintendent Van Ingen after which the board adjourned:

To the Board of Education:

I wish to report that, both the upper and lower floors of the new building are now in use. The third grade students occupy the upper floor and the eighth grade the lower floor. Practically all the work is in full operation except the physical education program and the music activities. Since the gym is not completed and all the gym lockers not installed, these two activities have been delayed.

The cafeteria is in full operation and very satisfactory in every respect.

It will be of interest to you to know the classification of the pupils now housed in this building:

	Boys	Girls	Total
Ninth grade	159	156	315
8th grade	83	67	150
5th grade	78	94	172
Total	321	317	638

Economist Speaks Here on Monday

Monday evening, October 24, at 8:15 o'clock at the Ulster County Community Center, corner of Franklin and Fair streets, Dr. Alfons Goldschmidt, economist, will speak on "The Czechoslovakian Crisis." He will speak here under the auspices of the Kingston Branch of the American League for Peace and Democracy, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

The following letter from Prague, October 6—These have been stirring and terrible days here. The people took a stand which was altogether astounding, they were as one body in their determination, holding firm to their faith in the alliance they acted accordingly. All the more horrible was their disappointment when the news of the Munich Conference became known. During the mobilization, which as is well known was ordered by Chamberlain and Daladier, I lived through days I will never forget. Before this mothers sent sons, and wives their sweethearts, to war with heavy hearts but now they actually forced weapons into their hands. When the result of the Munich Conference became known all the more horrible was their disappointment. It expressed a betrayal such as the world has never known. But their disappointment did not mean resignation—instead, it increased their determination for a united defense with the certainty that the Soviet Union would come to the rescue.

Have you ever in your life seen exhibitions of weeping men who were resolved to the point of utter indifference to life? It was frightful and heroic at the same time. The penetration of the barbarians is not yet complete. It is still going on. Here it is firmly believed, and it is also my personal opinion, that if England and France had taken a firm stand the war would not have taken place. But Chamberlain, before he resigns, wants to change the map of Europe to suit the English Lords, and so he goes on step by step, fully conscious of what he is doing.

A stream of refugees is now pouring from the Sudeten territory into the interior of the country. The heads of the government do not want this. Their policy is to get rid of the Germans at all costs and to create a "closed" race of Czechs, Slovaks and Carpathians. Whole train loads are sent back to the Sudeten territory and the human tragedies that result are not to be distinguished from those of war itself. We have all we can do to prevent as much human misery and destruction of life as we can control.

I beg you with my whole heart as soon as you receive this letter to get in touch with as many people as possible who are able to give freely and explain the whole situation to them. The refugees are indeed in evacuation camps but we greatly fear that many of our bravest people who for years resisted the Fascist hounds have been sent back and have already fallen into the hands of the barbarians. The least we can do to help those who are the most exposed from being lost. I implore you to work quickly. What will become of the thousand German political refugees in this country the future alone can tell. Several hundred were in the Sudeten land and had almost found a home there. Naturally they are all arriving here and we must take care of them.

Yesterday Deenes resigned and everyone feels that the political development will become reactionary and that the government will try to establish an "amicable" relationship with Germany. I am of the opinion the country in the future will be very strongly dependent on Hitler. Certainly war is a dreadful thing and it has not been avoided for the future.

In general the chief task is to force peace upon the aggressors by refusing every concession to the Fascist robbers and here in our country the most important thing will be to preserve and uphold democratic liberties and the Masaryk traditions. This will be difficult. There are efforts in progress to bring about the union of the workers and they seem to me not quite hopeless.

Dr. L. J. Palmer To Speak Here

In keeping with the policy initiated by Exalted Ruler John M. Cashin, a public speaker of prominence and ability has been secured to address Kingston Lodge No. 550, B. P. O. Elks at its next meeting Thursday evening, October 27, it was announced today.

The speaker will be Dr. Leo J. Palmer, now warden of Walkkill State Prison. For several years he served as assistant superintendent of the Institution for Detention of Delinquents at Napanoch, New York. Following this service he became superintendent of Bedford Hills Reformatory for Women.

Walkkill Prison, of which Dr. Palmer is now warden, was originally occupied November 1, 1932. It was the first prison of its kind in New York state, and was conceived upon the theory that among our prison and reformatory population there should be at least 500 of the younger and more hopeful type, who could be trusted in an institution with no surrounding enclosure. All inmates are received at Walkkill by transfer from other non-institutional after careful selection.

Dr. Palmer has talked in Kingston at a communion breakfast of St. Mary's Holy Name Society and on other occasions. He has always demonstrated his ability as a speaker of compelling interest.

Past Exalted Ruler Edwards, who is in charge of the lodge activities committee has also announced that refreshments will follow the speaking program.

New NYA School Site May Follow

At the conference held Friday in Albany with the state health department officials of the city of Kingston stated that while they were desirous of having the proposed National Youth Administration training school located in Ulster county, they did not care to have it located in Mink Hollow, which is the source of the city's water supply.

It is understood that the city officials obtained the cooperation of the state health department in the matter, and that both the water board and the state health department will write the NYA asking that the school be located elsewhere in Ulster county than in the city's watershed.

The officials have offered their services in obtaining a suitable location for the proposed school in the vicinity of Woodstock, but outside the watershed, and as near Kingston as possible.

Wage-Hour Bill Effective Monday

16 years of age or to employ in an industry officially declared to be "hazardous" any person less than 18. Children between 14 and 16 may be given limited employment in non-hazardous and non-manufacturing industries.

These three principal provisions of the law are complicated by a great variety of special exemptions which Andrews has attempted to clarify by official rulings. He has refrained, however, from applying these rulings to any particular industry, explaining that each employer must decide for himself whether his business comes under the ruling. An employer may, however, appeal to the administrator for guidance.

Wage-hour officials pointed out that the courts rather than the administrator constitute the final authority on the act.

If an employer fails to comply with the wage, hour or child labor sections he may not lawfully ship his goods in interstate commerce. If he violates the law, he is subject to a maximum fine of $10,000, maximum imprisonment of six months or both.

If he fails to pay proper overtime or proper wages, affected employees may sue for twice the amount he should have paid them to comply with the act.

Although Andrews has said there would be no "period of grace" after next Monday for those slow to comply, he has indicated he would not be "unreasonably" strict regarding technical violations by employers honestly trying to live up to the law.

On the other hand, he has stressed that he has no leniency over suits brought by employees. Andrews issued rulings late yesterday covering his definitions of a "wage" of seasonal industries and of how overtime should be computed.

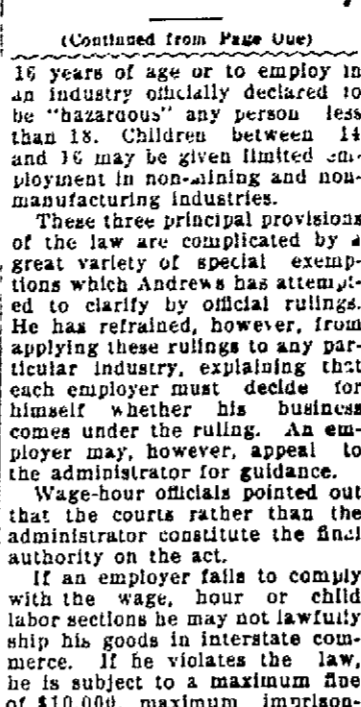

It is clearly the intent of the law, he said, that overtime be figured on the basis of the employee's established rate of pay and not on the 25-cent minimum set out in the act.

In his regulation on seasonal industries, Andrews distinguished between those industries which are seasonal because of "natural conditions," such as the growing of crops, and those which are seasonal for other reasons. He said the 14-week annual exemption from the 44-hour week granted to seasonal industries would be limited, therefore, to those in the first category.

Meanwhile, Miss Katherine Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau, which administers child labor sections of the act, announced regulations for the employment of children between 14 and 16. Their employment, under the ruling, is barred in mining, manufacturing, the operation of motor vehicles and messenger service.

In permitted employment, they must work outside school hours, not more than three hours on any school day and not more than 8 hours on any other day, and their hours of work always must be between 6 a. m. and 7 p. m.
